Identifying Characteristics: She has a red quarter-sized birthmark on the nape of her neck.

Circumstances: Unknown. Annalycia has been missing from Clyde's Market in Chiloquin, Oregon since July 9, 1994. She traveled in an open backpack with her mother's boyfriend on a fishing trip to a creek near Fort Klamath. After a day of fishing, the man told investigators he stopped at the market to buy an apple and left her in the car. When he returned, she was gone. An attendant at a Sprague River gas station reported hearing a baby crying in a car when the man stopped there, so police knew Annalycia was with the man at that point. There were no signs of foul play and because of a lack of witnesses - including the gas station attendant who died several days after Annalycia was reported missing - and no physical evidence, Annalycia was never found. Her case remains unsolved.
